NEW BOOKS

Promises To Keep: The Life of Dr. Thomas A. Dooley by Agnes W. Dooley.

A pictorial and documentary account of the life of Dr. Tom Dooley compiled by his mother. The text and pictures cover young Tom Dooley's growing up in St. Louis, study at the Sorbonne, medical training at St. Louis, commissioning as a U. S. Navy doctor, and his world famous work with the refugees of Viet Nam and among the people of Laos.

In an epilogue to a "young doctor", Tom Dooley writes as advice: "Dedicate some of your life to others. Your dedication will not be a sacrifice. It will be an exhilarating experience because it is intense effort applied towards a meaningful end"

The Appomattox County Library has the following books which Dr. Dooley wrote prior to his death: Before I Sleep, Dr. Tom Dooley, The Edge of Tomorrow.

Doctor In Buck'skin; a novel by T. D. Allen

Although this is classed as a novel it is the true story of the life of Dr. Marcus Whitman whose love for humanity and zest for pioneering were stronger than his Yankee common sense. Although born and lived 100 years in advance of Dr. Dooley, both were men of the same spirit. After his graduation from medical school in New York, Dr. Whitman became a member of the first party to cross the plains by wagon and to reach the Pacific coast. He and his bride, Narcissa, were almost the only white people living in Oregon among the Cayuse Indians. Often exasperated but never losing faith in their mission, the Whitmans learned the native language, shared their dwindling supplies with the Indian people — only to have their lives end tragically

Service Is A Life

Lesson for March 10, 1963

Service must be a tired word. It is worn thin by being overused on less than first-rate occasions. For example, a hotel advertises "Service with a Smile." What they mean is that the bell boys will do just what you want done and ask no questions. Service there means that your whims will be attended to. Again, "service" is used by manufacturers and salesmen all over the place, meaning simply that when the thing you bought breaks down they'll send help to get it started again; they will make right what should have been right in the first place.

Service Can be Heroic

One of the more astonishing facts about Jesus was that he could take an old word and give it a new meaning which it has never entirely lost. One of these is this word "Service." For one thing He made it a term of honor. He told His friends that the way to greatness is the way of service. He who be greatest of all, let Him be servant of all. He Himself consciously fulfilled the prophecies of the "servant songs" in the latter half of our book of Isaiah, in which the "Servant of the Lord" is described in moving and tragic words. He told His disciples in one of their last hours together: "I am among you as he that serveth."

Service, as Jesus saw it and performed it, was no trifle, no humdrum job. It became a mark of honor. Not only that, it rose at times to the heroic. When James and John came asking to sit on thrones beside His (for it was long before they got it through their heads that Jesus was not aiming for the traditional crown-and-scepter business)—Jesus asked them first if they could be baptized with His baptism. They said yes very easily; but only because they did not realize what He meant. It was baptism in blood He was talking about. The aim of His life, He had already said; was "not to be served but to serve, and to give His life." Service and sacrifice, service and heroism, service and honor: Jesus linked these together once and for all.

Serving the Whole Man

Some people spend their lives (and make money) by looking after sick cats and dogs. Others spend their working hours sweeping and mopping; and some people are garbage tippers. Now there is no work so humble that it cannot be undertaken in a spirit of Christ-like service. But there is something in this world more important than cats or floors or garbage; namely people. Jesus was a carpenter for many years; but the time came when He could leave benches and ox-yokes to others. He would go out to mend something more fragile than ox-yokes, more enduring than benches: human beings. Any one who is capable of "servicing" human beings, in the way Jesus did, is wasting his talent on any less rare material. What would we think of a Savior of men who ran a cat shop? Jesus put men together as He formerly put wood together. He treated men as whole men, or if they were not, He set out to make them so. Jesus was healer, teacher and preacher.

Higher Serves the Lower

In the ordinary use of the word "Service," people think of the one who serves as on a lower level, a lower grade than the one who gives the orders. Jesus' idea of it was quite different from that. To Jesus' mind (and who is ever nearer the truth than He?) it is the mark of the superior person to be a servant. His very superiority lays an obligation on Him to help others. There was once a brilliant scholar who was also an able doctor, and a great musician on top of that. This man "buried himself" in the forests of Africa to be a missionary doctor to the backward people in a backwash of the world. His friends tried to keep him from going. You are a superior man, they argued. Stay where you will have recognition and honors! But the young doctor went on out to his jungle: and today the world honors him. Albert Schweitzer, far more than they would have, if he had not devoted his superiority, in Christ's name, for those who were in need of all things.

Pastor Says

THE WALKING PAD

Our President, in his physically fit program, is encouraging daily walks, hikes and marathons. The banks of the old Canal in Georgetown has become a very popular route for the secretaries in Washington's federal buildings. Last week, I believe a group of young men stepped out their car here in Appomattox County, at Vera, and sprinted to Bedford, fifty miles away in eight hours.

This calls to mind a very challenging idea in God's Word; the great Apostle Paul, a man who walked all over Palestine, Asia Minor and parts of Eastern Europe admonishes us to "walk circumspectly" (Ephesians 5:15) Literally he is saying that we are to be careful, how exactly we walk.

Perhaps, while we are giving emphasis to the physical fitness program all over our country, we should also give more emphasis to spiritual fitness a spiritual marathon is long overdue in America.

The scientists, technicians, historians, sociologists and politicians have been calling attention to the development of a healthier moral program. The time has come when the Pastor and Church must take the lead in these matters; for this is their field. It is the honest conviction of many in our society that the church has already lost it's power and influence in these areas because of our slackness.

It is my opinion that German Nazism, and Russian Materialistic Communism could never have taken over in the first place, if it had not been for the dry-rot which accompanied the moral and spiritual breakdown of our times. Only an ignoramus will fail to observe this dry-rot in Europe. Men like Schopenhauer, and his kind developed a sort of humanistic concept, which believed that a man could be developed to be sufficient unto himself. I have asked myself how this was possible! The answer keeps coming back to me that it is because we have forfeited, and failed in challenging our people to the right kind of myth. It's my honest conviction that all the holocaust in Europe and other parts of the world was preceded by a spiritual breakdown or because of the absence of the spiritual influence. So these rationlists of Germany and Russia have vacated the house, of spiritual concepts, but the sad part of this is that the house is still empty. In spite of all their effort to fill the house with reality the spirits now occupying the house are seven times worse than the others. Germany's overrun of some of the low countries, and the loss of freedom by Communism, is preceded by the loss of spiritual power. The Christian Gospel somehow was not disseminated as it should have been spread. This is not a weakness of Christianity itself, but the lack of dedication on our part. We are self-determined people, therefore, God does not incorporate any more of our lives in His Kingdom than we are willing for him to have.

Historically speaking, Christian Orthodoxy so - called failed in it's thrust upon the mind and soul of man, so Materialistic Communism took over. Now they too have left the house spiritually desolate. The glorification of self, in its very best form, isn't sufficient.

So to walk carefully, exactly is timely for our times. This means we must walk in Faith, believing that God is still omipotent, and His Grace in Christ is real. That his Spiritual power is avaiable to all. There must be a return to giving priority to the Kingdom. Jesus succinctly stated this principle in the Sermon on the Mount.

What 4-H Clubwork Means To Me

Throughout my school life 4-H clubwork has meant so much to me.

It has taught me to work with club leaders and members and how cooperation pays off.

To work on your own and working with your family is what the 4-H club stresses most.

My projects each year have given me a great deal of experience. I have learned to know and appreciate wildlife more than ever, to identify trees and to repair electrical objects, also to plant a garden.

Any 4-H Club member who does his best can be sure of a successful future.

Roy Cheatham
